

Past imperfect (or descriptive past) tense.

Past imperfect (or descriptive past) tense. Замони гузаштаи ҳикоягӣ

Whereas the simple past tense communicates a single action in the past that is finished, the past imperfect tense is used to describe repetition or a continuous action in the past.

Compare

Simple past: I read a book.

Past imperfect: I used to read books.

Simple past: I went to your house yesterday.

Past imperfect: When I was little I would play at your house.

The past imperfect is formed by adding the prefix ме- to the simple past.

мекардам	I used to do	мекардем	we used to do
мекардӣ	you used to do	мекардед	you used to do
мекард	he/she used to do	мекарданд	they used to do

The above chart could be translated “used to do”, “would do” or “did” depending on the context. The negative is formed by adding the prefix на-

Examples:

The past imperfect cannot be used to refer to a definite time in the past, but instead must refer to a period of time within which the action used to occur. For example, in English we cannot say, “Yesterday I used to go to your house.” We would say, “Yesterday I went to your house.” (simple past)

The past imperfect cannot be used for a definite period of time. If a definite period of time is indicated, the simple past must be used. See these examples:

Агар ӯ хоҳиш медошт , ҳамроҳи мо ба театр мерафт .	If he had wanted, he would have gone with us to the theatre.

The past imperfect tense is also used to express desirability, only in combination with the word кошки (if only, I wish).

Кошки медонистам .	If only I knew. or I wish I knew.
Кошки дирӯз ҳамин хел мешуд .	If only yesterday had been like this.

Бояд is followed by the past imperfect tense of a verb to indicate that the subject was obligated to perform an action in the past. This construction is best translated as “had to, should have”. The negative is formed by adding на- to the verb or to бояд.

Ман бояд ... мекардам	I had to do	Мо бояд ... мекардем	we had to do
Ту бояд ... мекардӣ	you had to do	Шумо бояд ... мекардед	you had to do
Вай бояд ... мекард	he/she had to do	Онҳо бояд ... мекарданд	they had to do

Examples:

Онҳо бояд ба Душанбе мерафтанд .	They had to go to Dushanbe.
Ту бояд дар он ҷо намомондӣ .	You didn't have to stay there.
Ту дар он ҷо набояд момондӣ .	You shouldn't have stayed there.

Шояд is followed by the past imperfect tense of a verb to indicate that the subject had the possibility of performing an action in the past (perhaps I would have gone).

Ман шояд ... мекардам	I might have done	Мо шояд ... мекардем	we might have done
Ту шояд ... мекардӣ	you might have done	Шумо шояд ... мекардед	you might have done
